Celebrating the Visit to Edmonton of the
"King and Queen"

The makers of our Constitution, recognizing the strength and value of unity in diversity, and recognizing, too, the immense importance of the Crown, legislated, so far as possible, that "for all time to come the Sovereign of Great Britain will be the Sovereign of British North America."

The first visit of a reigning Sovereign to one of his Dominions is an event of historic importance. In our welcome to the King and Queen there will be a warmth born of the consciousness of a common bond of service to the State.

What will be the effect on our Canadian people of the Royal visit with its colorful pageantry, its suggestion of pomp and power, its emphasis on treasured traditions, its almost religious symbolism? It will afford us the privilege unprecedented in our history—of demonstrating our loyalty to the Crown, and our love and affection for our beloved "King and Queen."

What are King George and Queen Elizabeth like in private life? The most obvious trait in the characters of the King and Queen is their personal simplicity. This is due in the first place to characteristics inherited from both their parents.
